OUR NEW YORK LETTER

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, Nov 21, 1867

Of all the large numbers of citizens of your State, who together with residents of other parts of the Pacific coast, have had occasion during the past few years, to travel by ocean, between New York and San Francisco, probably not one in a hundred has realized how many different schemes have been from time to time projected for interoceanic communication across the narrow portion of the great American Continent known as the "Central American States" or what extraordinary pecuniary success has attended the enterprise of the "Panama Railroad Company," over whose route a large majority of these travelers have been borne. One thing assuredly all have realized to wit: that for a three or four hours' ride over that forty eight miles of Isthmus road, they had to pay by increased steamer fares, the sum of twenty five dollars, and for every pound of baggage, in excess of stinted allowance, they had to suffer the everlasting ten cent stipend.

The recent withdrawal of steamers from the Nicaragua route, and the proposed establishment of a new opposition line via Panama by the "North American Steamship Company," invests this old question of Isthmus transit with new points of interest, and we therefore propose to present to the readers of the OREGONIAN, in this letter, a brief history and statement of the present condition of several interoceanic routes proposed between the Atlantic and the Pacific.

From a very early day the attention of wise commercial men among all nations has been directed to the means of facilitating communication between these oceans. The early Spanish adventurers, following closely upon the first discovery of Columbus, pushing their researches after the coveted treasures of the New World—gold—gold—found out by what a narrow strip of land, the great seas were divided, penetrated the slimy swamps and rugged mountains of Darien, beheld for the first time the placid waters of the great Pacific and discovered the rich mines of Peru.

Along the old mule trail, from Cruces or Gorgona on the Chagres river to Panama, traversed by the tens of thousands who early crowded that route to California, could be seen some remains of a well paved road, built by the comrades of Cortez and Pizarro, in the sixteenth century, for the transportation of the vast treasures which Spain drew from her discoveries on the western coast of South America.

In the eighteenth century, before the invention of railroads, England, France and Germany furnished many schemes, all more or less practicable for this interoceanic communication.

But not until the discovery of gold in California and the annexation of that Mexican province, to the United States, did sufficient interest centre in one nation to render the opening of a great highway across Central America an object of national desire.

It is common to recall, still less than twenty years, the difficulties and doubts which beset these earlier undertakings of the New York and San Francisco steamship pioneers. The tedious voyage around Cape Horn, and the weary travel across the plains, became utterly insupportable to the impatient rush of gold seekers, to whose excited imagination each day's delay was the loss of a colossal fortune, each minute was depriving them of a nugget larger than a rook's egg and richer than the solid plating of Solomon's Temple.

It thus fell to the lot of the United States to be almost compelled to find out and provide the quickest and most improved means of interoceanic communication. A glance at the map of the American continent, seemed to leave no doubt about the place and the path to be chosen. The Isthmus of Panama where only fifty miles of land separated the two oceans, almost without a question, was adopted as the future great highway of nations from the stormy waters of the Atlantic to the placid shores of the Pacific. The General Government soon gave its official endorsement to this public decision by authorizing the Postmaster General to enter into mail contracts with two steamship lines, one from New York and New Orleans to the Isthmus, and one from the Isthmus to California and Oregon. The contract for the Atlantic side was soon undertaken by George Law, and by connections with Charleston, Savannah and New Orleans, secured an immediate profit. But the prospect of deriving any returns from the Pacific side, seemed, for a time so doubtful, that no one at first was willing to undertake the enterprise. At length, as the tide of gold seekers increased, and the reports of the richness of the New El Dorado became confirmed, three New York merchants—William H. Aspinwall, Henry Chauncey and John L. Stephens took the contract to carry the mails on the Pacific, and in connection with this conceived and executed the bold plan of building a

RAILROAD ACROSS THE ISTHMUS OF PANAMA.

This was an undertaking which fairly entitles these gentlemen to be numbered among the great benefactors of the world. It is difficult, without having been a traveler across the Isthmus, both before and after its completion, to form an adequate conception of all the difficulties encountered and overcome, in the construction of the Panama Railroad.

A very formidable contract was obtained from the Government of New Grenada, among the important concessions being grants of lands and other privileges, and the exclusive monopoly for fifty years of building or operating a railroad across the Isthmus within the territory of that Government.

The work was begun in May, 1850, amid the black and slimy swamps about Navy Bay, in forests of dense vines and thorny shrubs, among an abundance of alligators, lizards, tarantulas, fleas, and with an atmosphere laden with agues, fevers and pestilential vapors. Engineers and laborers had to work with their faces covered with gauze veils, sometimes waist deep in mud and water, and sleeping at night crowded on old hulks anchored in the bay. Workmen died by hundreds and thousands, and each steamer that arrived brought a quota of fresh men and carried away the remaining part of a former quota sick and disabled. Americans, English, Irish, Germans, French, natives from the neighboring coasts, negroes and mulattoes from the West Indies, Coolies and Chinamen, were all tried in turn, and all in turn succumbed. It has been said, and perhaps without being wide of the truth, that for every tie or sleeper used in the construction of that road, laborers enough have died to place a double row of skulls under each end.

After two years of incessant but most disheartening labor, the first thirteen miles of the road was built through the swamps and jungles, and the higher ground reached. But here the forests were as thick, the insects as abundant, and the fevers as deadly. Only instead of bottomless mud there were ragged hill sides, wild chasms and turbulent streams. Every article of food, and every piece of material used in the construction of the road, had to be transported thousands of miles. Ties or sleepers made from native timber had to be replaced by others imported, before a train could run over them. The forests of the whole route do not provide so much as a telegraph pole that will last six months.

The road was however completed in less than five years, the first passenger train passing over the route from ocean to ocean in January 1855. Since that time it has never been wholly interrupted, and the enterprising capitalists, who with so much courage and determination persevered in the undertaking, in spite of all discouraging experiences have been most amply rewarded by the financial success of their enterprise.

Two years before the road was finished they were in the receipt of handsome dividends from a portion used, and for the last seven or eight years from twenty to sixty per cent per annum on the capital stock have been divided among share holders.

And besides these dividends, the savings of the road have paid off a large mortgage, made valuable additions to the Company's property in buildings, steamships, vessels etc, and furnished a liberal sum for Reserve and Sinking Fund. The shares of this Company—par value, one hundred dollars—are scarcely ever seen in market and are held at from two to three hundred dollars.

The extraordinary success of the Panama Railroad Company, may be better understood when the reader is reminded that it is the main and almost exclusive channel of communication between the Atlantic States and much of Europe on one side, and the Pacific States and large portions of Mexico, Central and South America, China and Japan, the East Indies and Australia on the other side.

On the Atlantic side no less than four lines with thirty or more steamers run between Aspinwall and American or European ports. On the Pacific side, five lines with thirty four steamers are running from Panama to California, Mexico, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Equador, Peru, Chili, Bolivia, Australia and other countries. Regular sailing vessels also swell the steady increasing tide of traffic across the Isthmus.

According to the original contract, the New Granadian Government reserved the right to purchase the entire road, buildings and appurtenances, at any time after twenty years from its completion for the sum of $5 000,000, an amount much less than the actual cost.

Within the last year the Company have succeeded in obtaining a modification of their charter from the Legislature of Bogota, and an undisputed franchise extended for the period of seventy years.

The great pecuniary success of the Panama Railroad, together with its inability at times, to fully satisfy the wants of the public, and the growing demands of commerce have tempted exploration and survey for other points likely to prove at all eligible for interoceanic travel, and no less than eight different routes have been proposed as competitors of the Panama road.

THE CENTRAL AMERICAN TRANSIT OR NICARAGUA ROUTE

stands next in importance, and is in fact the only one beside that of Panama which has ever been put in actual operation.

From the indifferent harbor of San Juan del Norte, or Greytown, the southeastern angle of the State of Nicaragua, ascending the San Juan river, sixty five miles by light draft river boats, across the lake of Nicaragua to Virgin Bay forty five miles, and over a land transit of twelve miles in stages or wagons to the well protected harbor of the San Juan del Sur, on the Pacific, here would seem to be found all the requisites for making a cheap and successful transit across the continent. This route has been in more or less use since 1852 but with frequent interruptions for months at a time, from shifting sand bars in the harbor on the Atlantic side, or from rapids in the river, which at low water are impassable for boats. During the last year the harbor at Greytown has become so utterly ruined by deposits of sands that all hope of removing the obstruction has been abandoned, and the steamers of the Nicaragua route are being transferred to the new line, via Panama, announced as the "North American Steamship Company," "Opposition to Monopoly," "Reduced Rates of Passage and Freight."

The ships of this company are eight in number, among which is the Oregonian, built by Messrs Laird, Bradford & Co, of your State. Two other new steamers are to be shortly added to the line, making in 1868 a tri monthly line, the same as the Atlantic and Pacific mail companies. Wm. H. Webb is the President of this new company, and for the present the steamers are advertised to leave New York for Panama on the 15th and 25th of each month. On the 5th of each month a steamer will still be dispatched by the Nicaragua Route, but this will probably shortly be transferred to Panama, giving through the old and the new rival companies, six monthly steamers from New York to San Francisco, to wit: On the 1st, 5th, 11th, 15th, 21st and 25th of each month.

By the provisions of the charter from the Nicaraguan Government to the Central American Transit Company, on the 18th of April, 1864, the company agree within four years to build a railroad twelve miles from the lake to the Pacific ocean and expend $70,000 in improving the San Juan river and harbor. As neither of these provisions will now be fulfilled by the company, it may be fairly presumed it is their intention to abandon the route altogether.

PIM'S, OR THE MONKEY POINT ROUTE.

This is a grant obtained by Gen Pim from the Government of Nicaragua for a railroad from Monkey Point, a fine harbor on the Atlantic, about thirty five miles north of Greytown, running across the country along the northern shore of Lake Nicaragua, and the southern shore of Lake Managua to Realejo or to the Gulf of Fonseca on the Pacific. This route would pass through some well cultivated districts, and considerable towns with a good amount of local traffic; but the line is the longest proposed, being either 230 or 270 miles according to the port selected as terminus on the Pacific side.

THE INTEROCEANIC SHIP CANAL,

Projected by Monsieur Felix Belly, is also located across the Republic of Nicaragua, and for the most part is intended to follow the course of the Central American Transit route, using the waters of the Lake Nicaragua and the San Juan river in its operation. This project is one of such gigantic magnitude, that we may not expect to see it undertaken for several generations to come. But if a great interoceanic canal shall ever be constructed to pass ships and vessels to and from either ocean, it will doubtless be along this region, where an immense body of inland water is found and where the highest land elevation is less than four hundred feet above the sea level.

THE HONDURAS ROUTE,

Through the Republic of the same name is projected from Port Caballos on the Atlantic, running nearly due south through Comayagua, the capital of Honduras, to the Gulf of Fonseca on the Pacific. This route is under the auspices of E. V. Squires, the famous Central American traveler and discoverer of ruins, and his associates. French and English capitalists are interested in building a road across this route, and late advices report that a million pounds sterling of the Honduras Railroad Bonds are now on the markets of London and Paris. The harbors at either terminus of this route are good, and the road when built, in addition to its through traffic, would open up and develope a large and most profitable local trade, in the mahogany, dyewoods, drugs, ornamental woods, and the products of the country. Its great length—nearly two hundred miles—will be the chief difficulty in the way of its construction. It would, however, as compared with the Panama route save more than a thousand miles of ocean travel between New York and San Francisco.

Still further to the north and west is located the famous

TEHUANTEPEC ROUTE,

Intended to run from La Barilla in the Gulf of Mexico to Ventosa in the Gulf of Tehuantepec. One great disadvantage of this line is that it has no greater elevation to overcome than eight hundred feet. In a transit of two hundred miles, which is very favorable for railroad building. There are two or three different contracts for the line already in existence, and neither the present nor prospective condition of Mexico, through which Republic the route will traverse would seem to give much promise of that political or social stability, which is indispensable to the execution of the work.

This would be the shortest interoceanic route between New York and San Francisco, and it would put New Orleans and our Southern neighbors at the very gate of the highway of nations.

In a very early day of the California gold excitement, the route was looked upon as offering many advantages and a few hundred travelers passed over the proposed line. The name of Sloo will be remembered as early associated with Tehuantepec and latterly ex Senator Gwin was figuring with Maximilian for a grant across the same Isthmus. The latest—actually the last new Tehuantepec grant has been conceded by President Juarez to M. Emile La Sere, which requires Monsieur La Sere and associates to pay fifteen per cent of the profits each year to the Mexican Government and surrender the road at the expiration of seventy years.

It is thought these illiberal conditions will prevent capitalists investing in the enterprise, and some modifications are hoped and looked for, on the part of the friends of the route.

Could Mexico but decide to treat the proposition of an interoceanic railway as liberally as do her sister Central American States there is little doubt that the Tehuantepec line would be fully occupied and put in successful operation within three years.

THE CHIRIQUI ROUTE

Is a later line of railway, proposed to be run across the province of that name, in the south-eastern part of Costa Rica. The route crosses Central America at a point nearer to Panama than any other, and is second only to that line in shortness and directness of land travel. The distance across the Isthmus is less than one hundred miles from Boca del Toro on the Atlantic side, to the Gulf of Dulce on the Pacific. This route combines many advantages, good harbors, easy grades, fine climate and rich mineral lands along the line, and would doubtless be speedily occupied by a railroad, but from the fact that the territory of Chiriqui is claimed by the two governments of of Costa Rica and New Grenada.

The latest project and at the present time the most promising of success, as a great rival interoceanic railroad is that known as the

COSTA RICA ROUTE.

On the 16th day of January, 1867, there was approved and ratified by the Congress of Costa Rica, and on the 14th day of March, 1867, duly signed and delivered in New York, to John C. Fremont, E. F. Beale, James W. Nye, Leonidas Haskell and Jas B. Hodgskins, a charter for a railroad company which in liberality of grants, in guarantee of franchises, in donations of public lands, and proposed loan of Costa Rica credit, far surpasses the most liberal guarantees of the Panama or all other routes. This road will be speedily built through the Republic of Costa Rica, from Port Simon on the Atlantic, passing through San Jose, the capital and the city of Cartago, to Port Caldera in the Gulf of Nicoya on the Pacific. Distance, one hundred and twenty three miles.

The surveys are already completed and a large force of engineers and laborers, [illegible] other things necessary for pushing forward the work, are beginning to arrive in that country from Europe.

Of all the Central American Republics, Costa Rica has been the only ones whose people have shown themselves fully capable and possessed of honest patriotism enough to maintain a republican form of government.

With a well established administration, an ably organized treasury—showing a regular annual surplus, a sound and convenient national currency, a convenient tariff whose liberality might shame some older and wealthier nations, with freedom of worship and an admirable system of public schools, with an industrious and peaceable people, this little Republic of one hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants has earned for itself the most ignoble appellation of "The Chile of Central America."

A State without a dollar of foreign or domestic debt, that devotes annually over fifty thousand dollars to the support of schools and a public University, that expends annually two hundred thousand dollars for the construction of roads and internal improvements, that has quadrupled her exports and imports in twenty years, and has raised a single article of export, coffee, to an annual amount of more than two millions of dollars in gold coin, presents a picture very different from what we are apt to couple with the name of a Central American Republic, and is well [illegible] to respectful consideration.

Some years since this Government began the work of constructing a wagon road across her borders and now lacks only twenty miles of completion at the Atlantic side. When finished, Costa Rica will have what no other country can boast, an almost straight line of good wagon roads from ocean to ocean, which can be traversed on horseback or in light vehicles in two days, and in heavy loaded wagons in five or six days. And built, too, by this enterprising people from their own resources, for their own traffic and without the assistance of a single dollar of foreign capital.

Along the line of this wagon road has been proposed the location of the railroad of General Fremont and company. The Government of Costa Rica has granted to this company the right of building and operating railroads and branches and a telegraph line for the term of ninety years, the Government reserving the right to purchase the railroad and appurtenances at the expiration of fifty years, by payment of cost in consolidated stock, bearing interest not less than eight per cent per annum in gold.

Everything imported by the Company for the purpose of construction or maintaining the road, to be duty free, and the road to be free of tax.

A grant of a belt of land throughout the whole extent of the line, three hundred Spanish feet wide, and wherever the road crosses public lands, a further grant of one thousand Spanish yards on one side of the line alternately.

One square league of land at either terminus of the road, and six square miles of public lands in any part of the country the Company may select, for every mile of railroad built.

The preferable right for the term of two years from the opening of the road, to [illegible] any [illegible] discovered on the lands granted by the government.

All laborers or emigrants introduced by the Company to have liberal grants of land upon settling and improving the same, and to be free from all taxation for ten years from the opening of the road, except in case of invasion.

The ports at the terminal of the road to be declared free ports during the term of the [illegible], and all goods and produce imported or exported at either port, must pass through the Company's dock and wharves.

The Company bind themselves to begin the work and expend $50,000 within one year from the ratification of the contract, (March 14, 1867), and to complete the road in six years from that date.

Lastly, as though all these foregoing grants and cancellations were not enough, the Government of Costa Rica guarantees eight per cent interest on the bonds of the Company, not exceeding [illegible] millions of dollars.

There can hardly be a shadow of a doubt that the road will be rapidly pushed forward to completion.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, DEC. 18, 1867.

The Peace Party Wants Another Military Leader.

The Democratic politicians are very actively at work just now in hunting up a candidate for the Presidency. The uniform result of all their caucuses seems to be a common understanding that their representative men must be ignored and the first place on the ticket given to some General who is indebted for what reputation and character he may possess to his participation in the late "Abolition war." But the trouble is to find a Democratic General. The war [illegible] a very scanty crop of them. Indeed it is about as hard to find a genuine Democratic general as it would be to discover a [illegible] who does not take sides with that [illegible]. True, there is Steadman, who might so far as politics goes, nearly fill the bill; but he made [illegible] a poor figure as a General, scarcely ranking as fourth rate, though no doubt he did some good [illegible] in a small way. The name of [illegible] a General would infuse little spirit or enthusiasm into the canvass; and if availability is the only thing looked for, the party might as well [illegible] else, especially as the Republicans will be sure to put in the field a man of undoubted military reputation. It was stated a few days ago that a late [illegible] of Democratic politicians [illegible] assembled at Washington, had [illegible] the views of General Hancock [illegible] has not [illegible] to any extent with [illegible] are now using his name in connection with the [illegible], but no doubt they are endeavoring to make this [illegible] by some of the [illegible] he has adopted since taking the command at New Orleans. It was stated some time ago by a telegraphic dispatch which we find [illegible], that at a [illegible] at Washington the [illegible] that General Grant had [illegible] if he would accept [illegible] and he had given [illegible] that he wasn't, on any condition [illegible] of that party [illegible] but it was [illegible] that the Republicans [illegible] [illegible] party [illegible] that he was not the man [illegible] that it is [illegible] in a good [illegible] [illegible] of the party [illegible] [illegible] 20th of May [illegible] [illegible] in the [illegible] [illegible] the State [illegible] in New [illegible] [illegible] in the Union [illegible]

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO DECEMBER 17.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—In the House, a large number of bills were introduced, several of which contain various propositions looking to resumption of specie payments.

A resolution was offered reciting the President's recommendations to repeal the reconstruction laws, declaring that Congress would never consent to take retrograde step nor deviate from its law. There is no reason to doubt the restoration of the rebellious States being successfully accomplished, and no good reason to repeal the reconstruction laws. The resolution was passed by a strict party vote—ayes, 111; noes, 32.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole to consider the deficiency appropriation bill, and soon after adjourned.

In the Senate, after the introduction of a number of bills and resolutions, the House bill repealing the tax on cotton was considered and several amendments were offered. A long discussion ensued.

Washington News.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—The Times' special says a bill is about to be introduced reorganizing the patent office, abolishing the office of Commissioner and creating a Board of Commissioners appointed by the President. A similar method is adopted by France and England. From this Board there will be no appeal except to the Supreme Court.

Some of the President's friends are urging the removal of General Pope and appointing Meade, on the ground that Pope recklessly removed several judicial officers merely to subserve partisan ends.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The Herald's Washington special says: Severe distress is expected among whites and negroes of the South during winter. In many instances starvation is actually at their door.

Gov. Humphreys of Mississippi has received such information of an intended outbreak among the negroes in January that he has deemed it necessary to issue a proclamation of warning against such combinations.

The Times has a St. Thomas letter which records several more deaths from yellow fever on board the United States [illegible].

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—The President's communication, giving reasons for the suspension of Secretary Stanton, published to-day says Stanton, in his condemnation of the tenure of office bill, was the most emphatic of all the members. He says, after the death of President Lincoln, the scheme of reconstruction was adopted which Stanton had himself prepared for Lincoln; the proclamation organizing the government of North Carolina was [illegible] in pursuance of this scheme, with the approval of every member of the Cabinet present. The President's difference of opinion with Stanton began with the acts relating to suffrage in the District of Columbia and the reconstruction bills of March, 1866. The President affirms that Stanton withheld dispatches stating the probability of a riot in New Orleans until the riot occurred, and refused to send instructions to prevent disturbance. The President [illegible] to prove the illegality of the efforts to [illegible] responsibility by depriving him of the right to select his [illegible].

The President nominated W. H. Gibbs for Governor of Idaho; Alex. K. Lowery for Register of the Land Office at Marysville, and James F. Swain, postmaster at Benicia.

An Extraordinary Message.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—The Times' special says the President is about to send to Congress an extraordinary message, [illegible] the course of Gen. Hancock at New Orleans, and will ask of Congress the [illegible] of one who, the President says, has inaugurated the reign of civil law, and given citizens the privilege of habeas corpus, the [illegible] of the courts and freedom of the [illegible]. The [illegible] will be soon printed, and will [illegible]. It is regarded as the commencement of a new policy, and will be followed probably by the removal of Canby and Pope.

RECREATION AND AMUSEMENT.—It is necessary that mortals should have some amusement, and since our city is not blessed with an elegant theatre, or some place of innocent amusement, it is the duty of every man to see that his acquaintances coming to our city should at least be pleased, and how can you please them better than by taking them to KOHN & FISHEL'S, No. 91 Front street, to buy one of those handsome suits they keep for sale.

Buchtel's Photograph Gallery is the only establishment in Oregon that is thoroughly prepared to do all the different styles of work in the art. Photographs from card to life size. The new cabinet cards, &c., &c. Small pictures enlarged (retouched in India ink—painted in water-colors or oil by Mrs. S. J. Rumsey. Pictures that are fading can be reproduced in this way. All negatives taken in this gallery will be carefully preserved, and additional copies had. I have now on hand a very large collection of negatives, the names of which are recorded alphabetically in a book for that purpose that can be seen in the reception room.

DOWN THE RIVER—FURTHER PARTICULARS OF THE FLOOD Capt. Fisher of the Ranger arrived last evening from Monticello, and gave us some further particulars of the devastations by the flood At Monticello the river had fallen about ten inches but continued to cut away the bank Capt Olsen's house was undermined and washed away Monday night A part of Smith Bros saw mill and a large amount of lumber had been washed away Capt Fisher went with his steamer up the Cowlitz river to Freeport The river had cut away the bank at that place to within ten feet of some of the houses and was still destroying it Judge Catlin's cattle had all been swept away by the flood There had been no communication of the mails since Friday On his return yesterday Capt Fisher went three miles up Lewis river which had been and is still very high On the North Fork the dwellings of Mr Eden Mr Webb and several others had been carried away with all their contents The East Fork of the river had not been heard from except that the firing of guns during Monday night had signified that somebody was in distress Lewis river is said to have been higher than the Cowlitz and to have been more destructive to property Great numbers of cattle were swept away and drowned The river which emptied just above St Helens, had cut a new channel and was emptying a large stream into the Columbia about ten miles below Capt Fisher thinks it possible that this channel may become the permanent course of the river should the flood keep up a few days longer He found the navigation very slow on account of the vast amount of drift running The Ranger had her wheel broken by a tree and one of her rudders was carried away

THE "GEM OF THE MOUNTAIN" —Mr C. H Seely, Superintendent of the LaGrande Gold and Silver Mining Co, showed us last evening, a specimen of rock taken from the Gem of the Mountain lodge, Eagle Creek It was taken from the bottom of the inclined shaft at a depth of about 250 feet from the surface It shows very rich evidences The company have been working the mine during the past summer with a five stamp mill of rather imperfect make, and yet have realized an average of $18 to $25 a ton The Humboldt Company with a better mill have been saving about $30 per ton from rock from the same lodge Mr Seely is here for the purpose of procuring better machinery, and has contracted with the Willamette Iron works for a 10-stamp battery and a 30 horse power engine, which he designs to send to the mine as soon as completed, if the Columbia be then open. He thinks it can be taken in on the snow without difficulty The LaGrande Co's mine is well developed now and they have, apparently, a fine prospect of realizing handsomely from it The shaft is sunk about 300 feet, on the incline and at that depth the lodge is eight feet wide For the last few weeks three men in the shaft have got out on an average of 8 to 10 tons of rock per day, and Mr Seeley thinks that ten or twelve men in the mine and mill, can run a 10 stamp mill to its full capacity It will thus be seen that the expense of working it will not, hereafter, be very heavy, as compared with the pay

ODD FELLOWS RELIEF COMMITTEE —An association called "The General Relief Committee of the I. O. O. F. of the City of Portland, was organized in this city on the 28th of September, 1867 It consists of three members each of Samaritan, Hassalo and Orient lodges The present members of the committee are, C H Martin J. H Lyon and W H Andrus, of Samaritan lodge C G. Clark, O. P Mason and L. L. Williams, of lodge C. L. Shepherd, J P Garlick and Archie Pague of Orient The officers of the committee are O H Martin, J H Lyon Secretary and C O Clark The objects of the association, are, briefly to afford relief to Odd Fellows who may be temporarily in this city or near either lodge, and who may be sick or in need of any pecuniary nature It is an organization practical workings and benefits have been for many years, thoroughly tested in other parts of the country and found to have been fruitful of much good It is a sort of assistant working branch of the order, with a scope scarcely less wide and comprehensive than those of the lodges, and by its less formal mode of action, is able to meet many cases of distress which the lodges might not. The committee of this city has already been instrumental in relieving several cases, and the last funeral here that of Bro Blumenthal—under the auspices of Odd Fellows, was conducted by the Relief Committee

ACCIDENT TO THE FERRY BOAT —Yesterday forenoon, the ferry boat while crossing the river, ran foul of a log which caught upon the front apron depressing it into the water The boat being under full headway, the apron was forced downward breaking one of the chains which held it and then, quicker than we can tell it, the other fastenings gave way and the apron was torn entirely from the boat. It was, however, picked up and brought to the landing at the foot of Stark street The wagons on board had to be drawn ashore by hand on an improvised bridge of planks Won't that several times, during the day, the current which was very rapid, got the better of the steering apparatus, and then the boat would take a wide sweep down stream The W. H. Knott, however, with indomitable perseverance, kept the boat running as regularly as circumstances would allow Navigating a ferry boat at the present stage of water, with the current and drift to contend with, is not the most pleasant occupation in the world

INDIAN AFFAIRS —We are permitted to publish the following communication to the Assistant Adjutant General of the Department of the Columbia, from Brevet Major General W L Elliott commanding the District of , and dated Fort Boise, Dec 9th

"I have the honor to report that there have been no depredations committed by the Indians in this District during the month of November, 1867, that I have heard of Reports of several parties have been reported by scouting made during the month from the small camps, the trail, so far as they could be followed, led from the settlements, I am confident that only small parties visit this part of the country, and they, because of the vigilance of the scouting parties, leave hastily without committing depredations."

OVERBOARD. Yesterday two sailors delivering to the of the steamship, at the staging at the ship's gangway, having a case of goods were suddenly precipitated about ten feet into the river, by the giving way of the braces of the staging Though the water there is very rough from the under currents, both the sailors succeeded in swimming ashore and the case of goods which fell with them was fished out It was a dangerous trip for the men.

THE CONGREGATIONAL FESTIVAL AND FAIR.—Oro Fino Hall was crowded last evening with visitors in attendance at the Fair The hall was beautifully decorated with evergreens, and there were all sorts of devices in operation to coax the dollars from the visitors pockets into the coffers of the managers. The receipts as we were informed were very liberal The Fair will be continued this evening, when the attractions will be more numerous than ever

TOOK THE RESPONSIBILITY —Captain Godfrey, of the Oriflamme, after waiting outside the bar some hours for a pilot, and seeing no indications of the pilot boat, took the responsibility of coming in without one He had never been here but once before, and the accomplishment of the undertaking therefore, speaks highly for his courage and accurate memory of the bar

TRIAL OF ENGINES —Protection Engine Co and Multnomah Engine Co had their steam fire engines out last evening on trial at the corner of First and Taylor streets The trial occurred just when we were up to our eyes in work, and no one of the firemen posted us as to the results, so we can't tell anybody which was the better

ARRESTED.—Two men George Henderson and A S Davis, were arrested yesterday on complaint of John Ryder, charging them with larceny by selling his property while temporarily hired to them A preliminary examination was in part had before Recorder , and the case was continued till this morning

RAILROAD MEETING TO-NIGHT —It is hoped that every body will remember the railroad meeting this evening at the court house. The committee selected at the former meeting are expected to present their report, and several gentlemen will address the meeting There should be a general turnout

WILLAMETTE PRODUCE —In consequence of the inability of the boats to pass Rock Island the Alert brought yesterday an unusually light freight of produce She had 34 empty barrels 1 box butter and 1 310 boxes apples

BARRETT —Mr Charles Barrett has a splendid assortment of magazines and newspapers received by the Oriflamme We acknowledge the receipt of various and sundry copies

LUNCH TO-DAY —The ladies managing the Fair at Oro Fino Hall will serve lunch to-day from 12 M till 2 P M, and the Fair will be continued this evening

FREIGHT FOR PORTLAND —The Oriflamme brought only one hundred and twenty-five tons of freight, the smallest arrival by steamer in the last year

DIARIES —Mr C Barrett injured our feelings yesterday by the present of a very nice diary for 1868 from a lot of which he has a few more left

MEETING OF THE RAILROAD COMMITTEE —The Railroad Committee is called to meet at 2 P M to-day at the banking house of Messrs Ladd & Tilton

THE RIVER —Capt Baughman of the Alert reports the river as still rising very slowly at Oregon City at one o clock yesterday

McCORMICK —At McCormick's may be found all the latest papers magazines etc He favored us with a bundle yesterday

TO SAIL —The steamship Oriflamme will sail hence for San Francisco on Thursday, the 19th at 4 o clock P M

THE AJAX —This steamer went to sea on Monday evening, about the same time the Oriflamme came in

The Late Murder in Umatilla County

From the Press of the 11th we obtain the following particulars of the late murder in Umatilla county

Thomas Scott was murdered by James East on Sunday last at Frank Ewing's ranch Butter creek The circumstances connected with the killing are as follows Scott who was formerly a resident of Polk county was engaged by Mr A H Whitley also of Polk county to come to Eastern Oregon as a herder of cattle Whitley who is a brother in law of East had his cattle ranging on Willow creek in the vicinity of East's ranch, at whose house Scott was boarding About three weeks before the murder East and Scott had some difficulty at which time East made threats of driving Scott off the creek Scott concluded he had better go below and inform Whitley of what was taking place and induce him to come up and arrange matters which was done the party arriving at East's home on Saturday evening Nothing it appears happened until supper was announced when East stationed himself at the dining room door and refused to admit Scott, unless he settled an account of $30 which East alleged was due for board (East at the same time being in debt to Scott) stating further that he could not have his horse until such was done Mr Whitley then advised Scott to wait until East was at supper and then saddle his horse and ride over to Ewing's about thirty two miles distant thinking thereby to avoid any difficulty which it appears East was determined upon This Mr Scott done and succeeded in getting away unnoticed East had to appear at Umatilla on Monday morning as a witness in a horse stealing case, and on Sunday morning left home, ostensibly for that purpose riding with Whitley in his buggy as far as Wells Springs, about midway between Willow Creek and Ewing's At this place as well as on the way there, Mr Whitley attempted to reason with East about his enmity to Scott fearing he intended to carry out his threat of taking Scott's life in case he met him East now refused to ride any further with Whitley and went into the stable saddled one of the stage horses and rode to Butter Creek arriving there about 1 o clock in the afternoon Here Scott and East met, outside the barn and Scott made the remark "East you treated me like a dog last night, treated me as no one but a son of a b—h would have done" East then drew his pistol and fired, the ball striking Scott a little to the left of the navel Scott fell immediately but regained a position on his feet—or rather his right foot, as the left side of his body appeared to be paralized —and fired five shots at East who also kept firing and circling around After firing the fifth shot Scott fell over on his face, exclaiming "Boys don't let him shoot me in the back" and died East waited around about ten or fifteen minutes, then jumped on his horse and rode off towards home where he had two span of horses hitched to a wagon, and started for the Dalles, taking his wife with him At the Widow's station between John Day's and Eaton's, he left his wife, and proceeded on horseback to the Dalles, arriving there in time to take the Monday morning's five o'clock boat for Portland Sheriff Maddock left town about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in pursuit East having five hours' start of him The Sheriff reached the Dalles at 8½ o'clock the next morning—a distance of 116 miles Had it been possible to obtain relays of horses East would certainly have been taken at the Dalles As it is, Sheriff Maddock took the next morning's boat, and we hope, has by this time got East in custody

LATER —Since the above was in type Sheriff Maddock has returned He succeeded in tracing East as far as Portland, but there lost track of him, and in all probability will make his escape, as he has many friends in that vicinity

PERRY DAVIS' VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER.
THE UNIVERSAL REMEDY FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL COMPLAINTS
At this period there are but few of the human race unacquainted with the merits of the Pain Killer, but while some extol it as a liniment, they know but little of its power in easing pain when taken internally, while others use it internally with great success, but are equally ignorant of its healing virtues when applied externally We therefore wish to say to all that it is equally successful whether used internally or externally and it stands alone unrivalled by all the great catalogue of Family Medicines and its sale is universal and immense The demand for it from India and other foreign countries is equal to the demand at home and it has become known in these far off places by its merits

THE PEOPLE have been so much imposed upon by several worthless Sarsaparillas that we are glad to be able to recommend a preparation which can be depended on as containing the virtues of that invaluable medicine and is worthy of the public confidence Dont. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures when anything can cure the diseases that require an alterative medicine

Just Cause for being Alarmed.—When a Cough has been running for a long time, and you begin to feel a pain setting in upon your lungs, attended with tightness across the chest It is high time that you should awaken to the danger of your disease which is fast running into Consumption Now before it is too late, use ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM which will cure the disease and all will be well with you For sale by the Dealers in Family Medicines generally

The Autumn of the Heart.

The corn bows its head to the sickle,
The nightingale's murmur is hush'd,
Rain-tears from the autumn trickle,
Beech fruits in the forest lie crushed,
We have fought, but the battle is ending,
We are wounded and sick from the fight;
Blue shadows around us descending
Breathe the [illegible] of night.

We have journeyed not heeding our danger,
Cried in wild supplication above;
We have loved till our eyes lost their anger,
And hearts became sleepy with love.
Red roses are dying which wreathed us,
We are stamped with the iron that scars;
Dead love in compassion bequeathed us
Its relic of tears.

Ah, me! but the Summer was pleasant;
Shall we die and its dreaming again?
Would we yield the dull days of the present
For an hour of the past and its rain?
Do we hunger for kisses that stung us?
Or long for the lips that have lied?
Must we stoop for the gauntlet they've flung us!
Weep! stoop to their side?

We cringe to these sowers of sorrow,
We cry for a blighted caress;
We dream for a night; on the morrow
We [illegible] the turns of distress.
We bow to our grief and privation,
We pay for the pleasures that cloy;
Our work is to build the foundation
They love to destroy.

Oh! women, with hearts brimming over
With [illegible] we never can feel,
The world is too weak to discover
The mystical love you conceal.
Our [illegible], not ours the reproving;
Yours [illegible], and ours the defeat.
Our lives are made bitter from loving,
Why are you so sweet?

Street Fight between E. A. Pollard and Relatives of Henry A. Wise.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 14.—About 12 o'clock to-day, as E. A. Pollard, the "historian" of "Lee and his Lieutenants," was passing in front of the Maltby House he was approached by a son and [illegible] of Henry A. Wise, named John and J. [illegible] Wise, each of whom fired a shot at Pollard, [illegible] through his right arm, he having his wife on his left arm at the time. He at once drew his pistol, but was unable to raise it to give a return fire on account of the wound he had received, and the ball from the [illegible] struck the [illegible]. The Wises [illegible] up from Richmond this morning to obtain [illegible] for a letter recently published by the [illegible] in reply to a letter of Henry A. Wise on his (Pollard's) "History of the War," and had [illegible] to meet him [illegible]. They are both in custody to await an [illegible].

[illegible] of the affair says the cause of the [illegible] Pollard, in his "History of the War," [illegible] the army commanded [illegible] was out, the [illegible] Wise having said he did not like the history, Pollard [illegible] that the reason why Wise [illegible] with the [illegible] was because it did not [illegible].

[illegible] John and Jos Douglas [illegible] E. A. Pollard, in front of the [illegible] this morning, were arraigned before the [illegible], and waiving an examination, they [illegible] in $2,000 each to appear before the [illegible] on Saturday next. Pollard's [illegible] the bone being [illegible], but is not [illegible]. He is now doing well.

[illegible] that there has been a [illegible] in ex-rebel circles on Pollard's [illegible] "Lee and His Lieutenants," to which ex-Governor Wise took exception, [illegible] that it [illegible] to men who should have had [illegible] in many [illegible] Wise's [illegible] long columns [illegible] the Richmond papers, and [illegible] resolution has been given to [illegible]. From this reply we cull a few [illegible] which may probably provoked the [illegible] stated above:

[illegible] having with [illegible] of his [illegible] has indulged a very pleasant [illegible] the ex-Governor Wise of [illegible] the war he had [illegible] nothing of this [illegible] of the Southern politi[illegible] brave of the old regime, be[illegible] to a horticultural society, and it [illegible] that the [illegible] tables had [illegible] that his [illegible] was now measured [illegible] Beautiful picture of [illegible] and humility of great men! It was not new.

[illegible] the con[illegible] of the [illegible] world, and makes a sudden [illegible] His [illegible] a frantic [illegible], which, [illegible] of bile and fury, which [illegible] of those diseased [illegible] the ex-Governor [illegible] had a dream in the nostrils [illegible] of his letter written with [illegible]. The [illegible] is that the [illegible] of "Lee and His Lieutenants" did not ascribe to the [illegible] he had expected of the [illegible] of the war, and also [illegible] the [illegible] of the political [illegible]. Yet every [illegible] man is challenged [illegible] to treat [illegible] him [illegible] the most charitable [illegible] the life and military career of [illegible] Wise, [illegible] the bad distinction [illegible] in the Confederate armies of being the only general [illegible] who [illegible] a [illegible] in four years, and [illegible] with [illegible] which he [illegible]

[illegible] the character of [illegible] is [illegible] for the man who [illegible] the ex-Governor Wise did on the brink of one of the [illegible] of modern [illegible] such energy as that [illegible] impelled the South into the [illegible] it was lost [illegible] that dis[illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] The [illegible] of the South rec[illegible] told by Wise and such men [illegible] with a few [illegible] that the Yankees would [illegible] and how the ex-Governor [illegible] the [illegible] in [illegible] himself with yellow [illegible] pistols.

[illegible] more than the [illegible] of ridicule. It was an important [illegible] was an [illegible] part of [illegible] a large share of the responsibility for the fearful [illegible] which over[illegible] our land; and if all the big [illegible] in which we [illegible] told that the [illegible] to be a fast race after Yankees, and the South [illegible] no other arms than sharpened "bits of [illegible] strings" with which to pur[illegible] until they choked, they would [illegible]

[illegible] the [illegible] of silence, and he [illegible] in view of the great ruins of the war which [illegible] lightly and [illegible]. The public is done with their bombast. The day of [illegible] A. Wise and Roger A. Pryor and Martin [illegible] the times of the [illegible], and the buckskin [illegible] is over, and a country [illegible] with graves, [illegible], mutilated and in terror, is a [illegible] of what a few swollen fools may do. Shame and [illegible] beat such creatures now!

When the [illegible] decided to write contemporary history, he was aware that in attempting the truth, and [illegible] all the solicitations of partiality, he [illegible] many [illegible] and animosities. He [illegible] to brave these. If he had represented every [illegible] (Governor Wise) as a [illegible] Miltiades, or Scipio, or Charles Martell, or a [illegible] Cid, the Campeador—if he had called [illegible] knights, and chevaliers and "flowers"—why [illegible] he would have been caught up into the mutual [illegible] society, and been praised by the newspapers and [illegible] by all the penny [illegible] of the South.

But he [illegible] to write the truth plainly, and [illegible] firmly, and soberly, for posterity; and the [illegible] is that he is perhaps the best [illegible] writer of the day, constantly assailed by [illegible] paragraphs and the [illegible] of personal enmity, and the cowardly tomahawks of hatred, and all the weapons of malignant criticism. But he can afford to [illegible] and he is really proud of the attentions of envy. They are no more the [illegible] than they are the proofs of merit.

The author has made it his usual rule not to [illegible] upon controversies with critics. "No man was ever written down unless by himself," says Dr. Johnson, who proved the virtues of his noble and [illegible] rule in his own case, by never replying to the critics who assailed him from envy [illegible] malignity, or accepting their invitation to unworthy and unprofitable controversy.

It is melancholy, indeed, how many otherwise [illegible] writers have "written themselves down" by too free a use of the pen in personal controversies, and killed their reputations in low and common quarrels with unworthy critics. Every author must, at last, trust his reputation to his own [illegible]; and if he has such, he may be sure that the great public will perceive and reward it.

It is in this [illegible] that the undersigned has forborne [illegible] explanations and defenses in newspapers. However, he may have departed from his rule in this single instance of ex-Governor Wise's extraordinary attack, he may safely promise to descend no farther into controversy with a hoary scold and political haggard, rotten with the old sores and vanity, and supporting a miserable existence only by the anodynes of self-love and conceit.

EDWARD A. POLLARD.

BATTLE OF THE BIRDS.—The Bloomington (Ind.) Progress says:

While sauntering around lately, we accidentally saw one of the most singular ornithological exhibitions that ever fell under our observation. A chimney swallow had only begun to balance his little body upon the topmost branch of a large cherry tree, when a robin of aldermanic proportions swept down upon him from a neighboring maple. The swallow fought nobly for a while and with every prospect of success, until his foe was reinforced by his mate. Then, and not until then, did the little hero cry for quarter. Twittering loud and piteously, he attracted the attention of some of his tribe, and to his relief came the colony of a neighboring chimney. Now began a combat worthy a painter's pencil. As the swallows advanced and retired in dark waves, they dealt cruel blows at the robins, who, maddened by pain, fought with desperation; but the odds were too great, and gasping, bleeding, catching from bough to bough, the robins fell to the earth, shapeless and torn. Although intensely exciting, the combat was not the most interesting feature of this curious exhibition. Many of the swallows were covered with wounds given by the sharp claws and strong beaks of the unfortunate robins, and these received the immediate attention of the wounded, who, in pairs, carried them tenderly to their sooty homes.

Now came the most singular feature. Tenderly, carefully and solemnly was each dead swallow conveyed to the top of a large chimney adjacent, and after piling up the rigid bodies in one sombre heap, the entire swarm settled upon the roof in silence, while one of their companions, whose great age was evident from the light gray of his feathers, perched upon the lightning-rod and for five or ten minutes chirped, twittered, and slowly flapped his wings. During this performance, which was evidently an oration upon the virtues of the deceased, the bird audience maintained their positions immovable; but at its close three of the birds, whose black, glistening coats denoted their youth, advanced and cautiously pushed the bodies into the yawning chimney. This accomplished, each winged witness sailed away, noisily twittering, as though in heated discussion over the fight in which each had participated.

LETTER FROM WM. D. KELLY.—In a note to William R. Runkell, of Philadelphia, Kelly, who favors the nomination of General Grant, says:

It is the earnestness with which he pursues a great purpose—the tenacity with which he advances to victory on the whole line—that impels the American people to insist on presenting him as their representative man. His duties as General have made him generally and minutely familiar with the question at issue. In his administration of his high office he has had daily proof that the Democratic party is positive and vigilant on one side, that of wrong, oppression and inequality, and that the Republican party, as represented in Congress by nearly three-fourths of the House of Representatives and a large proportion of the Senate, is as positive on the other—that of right, justice and equality.

The hand of God is in this contest. His people are again passing through the Red Sea. The Republican party under His guidance, has gone so far that its leaders dare not recede or even pause. Three States are hopelessly Democratic. In [illegible], Maryland and Kentucky, the returned rebel soldier votes, but the dark-complexioned loyalist is disfranchised, though he fought for the flag on a score of bloody fields, and these States are irrevocably Democratic. But the dark-complexioned man though he be a negro, votes in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, Tennessee, and if the later returns are correct, henceforth in Minnesota, and they are all thoroughly and reliably Republican States.

In the ten States now being reconstructed under the laws of Congress and the executive supervision of General Grant, Government is to be established for man, and not for a particular race of men, and Congress has decided that no man shall be denied the right to vote by reason of race or color. In three of these States, South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana, citizens of African descent constitute a majority, and in the other seven they hold indisputably the balance of power. When, therefore, you order the friends of manhood suffrage to step out of the Grant ranks, you order eighteen certain Republican States to quit the [illegible], you reduce your party to a helpless minority in all the rest.

LOVE VS. WEALTH.—The following dialogue actually occurred in this city the other day:

Mrs. Jones When I was married, my husband told me he was worth two hundred thousand dollars; but he lost it within a year.

Sarah (a single lady)—Well, that did not make much difference with you, you have always had all the money you wanted.

Mrs. Jones No, indeed, I have not; during the first year I had horses and carriages and all that.

Sarah—Well, you married for love; you would have had him if you had not thought him to be rich.

Mrs. Jones—No, indeed; do you think I would throw myself away with a man twice my age, if he was not wealthy?

Sarah—Well, your husband thought you loved him, did he not?

Mrs. J Oh yes.

Sarah—Then you were not half so badly fooled as he was.—Boston Transcript.

A FEW HARD THINGS.—Experience and observation have taught men that it is Hard to quit chewing tobacco;

Hard to keep from eating too much:
Hard to drink liquor and not be intemperate;
Hard to pay your debts;
Hard to [illegible];
Hard to [illegible] a man you know to be a liar;
Hard to turn the other cheek when we are [illegible].
Hard to borrow money from friends when we need it;
Hard to love our enemies;
Hard to be jilted by the girl we love, and then [illegible] a stone wall in [illegible].

"Will you have a daily Sun?" said a newsboy to Mrs. P[illegible]. "Will I have a daily son? Why, you scapegrace, how dare you insinuate against a lone woman from home? No, indeed—I guess I won't have a daily son! My poor man used to complain when I presented him with a yearly son. A daily son, indeed! Begone, you little upstart imp!" And the old lady called for the turkey fan to keep her from swooning.

An Italian organ-grinder in London named Angelo Basi, was fined forty shillings and costs on the complaint of a poor woman (Anna Leigh), who charged the itinerant musician with continuing his music after she had repeatedly begged him to desist, on account of the illness of her husband. Persons who undergo exquisite torture from the strains of hand-organs, will rejoice if this can be drawn into a precedent.

During the war a lady passing from cot to cot through the wards of a hospital, was shocked to hear a soldier laughing at her. She stepped to reprove the wretched fellow. "Why, look here, ma'am," says he, "you have given me a tract on the sin of dancing when I've both legs shot off."

Five women are editors of papers in Iowa. Women have some of their "writes" in that State.

CARD.

DR. BARLOW J. SMITH'S WATER CURE AND Phrenological Institute, 627 Sacramento Street, San Francisco. This is the only Regular Water Cure in Francisco, where all curable diseases are treated without drugs. Dr. Smith was the first to establish a water cure on this coast, based upon the theory and practice of the New York Hydropathic College.

We have a truly healthful boarding place for men, women and children, and our prices are moderate.

The Phrenological organs plainly indicate the diseases to which any person, male or female, is predisposed.

Put this card in your hat, and when you come to San Francisco, call on Dr. Smith. He will give you consultation and a phrenological examination in regard to health. It will cost you nothing and may save you months and years of ill health and "bad luck."

Dr. Smith gives free lectures to gentlemen every Friday evening, on subjects pertaining to health, at his Phrenological Hall, 627 Sacramento Street.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

616 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco, Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Disease.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgence, [illegible] into the system! Look at their [illegible] ted and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible [illegible] destroying maladies, see that they are cured for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all [illegible]. In a few days, imposing upon the public by using the [illegible] of [illegible] from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

[illegible], the [illegible] This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, [illegible], with [illegible] certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of [illegible], uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of [illegible], [illegible] in applying strength, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of [illegible], [illegible] pimples and [illegible] the face, furred tongue, foted breath, [illegible], night sweats, [illegible] and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this [illegible], which never fails of [illegible] a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN.

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these [illegible] maladies, should not fail at the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

TO THE LADIES.

The various complicated and distressing diseases incident to females, treated with eminent success. Such as Suppressions, Irregularities, Whites, Falling of the Womb, [illegible], all Urinary Diseases, Nervous Debility, Painful or Difficult Menstruation, Barrenness, etc., will be speedily cured, without poisonous drugs, injuries, or unpalatable medicines of any kind. Have no delicacy in calling, no difference what your troubles may be. The afflicted are cordially invited to call and satisfy themselves.

Persons calling at Dr. Gibbon's office or sending for packages of medicines, may rely upon his assurances of confidential secrecy with implicit faith, and expect no more than to be charged with a fair, and mutually satisfactory remuneration for services rendered, considering the circumstances and difficulties of cases, rather than a too prevalent and selfish practice of extortion among quacks and pretenders.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Parties at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 616 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco. Post Office Box 252.

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 252 ON THE LETTER.

Consultations FREE.

Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian.
